P. B. S.

There have been some very, very narrow escapes in the history of the world's important events but the closest we've ever witnessed, or ever want to witness, was that scalp-lifting affair with Baltimore U. last week. Thrills! Thrills! And more thrills, with the awful spectre of Washington College hanging like a vengeful shadow over the gym.

It was just too bad Washington had to win that game at Chestertown, but the trip provided a glorious excursion for a great many of our younger set.

Anyway, Loyola can now flaunt her proud possession of the State Championship in the envious eyes of all her erstwhile opponents. Congratulations are in order for the men who made this possible by their skill and effort.

Now that basketball has been laid away in mothballs, it's time to say a word or so about this business of "puddle-jumping." If there is one thing that grates on a gentleman's nerves, it certainly is this daily exercise of dodging splashes from humorous drivers on Cold Spring Lane. It's really great fun—if you're in the car.

There's a serious issue with which the late-comers will have to cope when the new Library is put in commission. The burning question is "Where will the Prefect of Discipline issue his tickets?" Will a student in the Science Building have to go to the Library for a slip or will it be the other way round?

Just as a friendly suggestion for the common weal, why not let

ALUMNI PLAY HOST TO GREYHOUND TEAMS

Record Crowd Gathers at Emerson to Enjoy Novel Program

The Alumni gave the Greyhounds a royal reception last evening at the Emerson Hotel and Mr. George, sponsor, chairman and toastmaster of the banquet has a reason for the smile of satisfaction that is his today. For "Ike," as everyone calls this spirited Loyola Alumnus, was principally responsible for the success of this "tremendous" evening. The two hundred and more who attended the banquet enjoyed every moment of it.

The banquet was all that a banquet could be and the entertainment more. Mr. George called upon Father Cerrutte, Faculty Director, Mr. Comerford, Coach, and Reverend Father Wiesel, President of Loyola to address the happy gathering. When these distinguished guests had left the Greyhounds blushing, the Alumni and students proud and enthusiastic, and everyone hopeful for "more worlds to conquer," Mr. George mounted the stage erected specially for the occasion, and then began the special program of entertainment. Martin Butler and Walter Meyer, with Charles Gorsuch at the piano, sang the praises of coach and team in clever parodies composed by Messrs. Mark

LOYOLA TO MEET NEW TEAMS IN 1929 GRIDIRON CONTESTS

The 1929 edition of the Greyhound football team under the leadership of Captain Ed Healy will play a schedule of eight games as has been recently announced by the Athletic Authorities of the College.

This schedule is an attractive and well balanced one with four newcomers making their appearance, namely, Gettysburg, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, American University and St. Bonaventure. These new opponents are taking the place of Duquesne, St. Francis, Navy and Catholic University.

All the above teams are formidable opponents and should furnish some interesting Saturday afternoon entertainment for the gridiron fans of Baltimore, especially since the prospects at Loyola for next year are particularly bright. The Greyhounds lose only six men by graduation — Bunting, Monahan, Dudley, Mackall, Boyd and Mosser. Although the shoes of these men will have to be filled, there is a fine nucleus of veterans left, around which to build a powerful grid machine, and a very successful 1929 campaign is anticipated.

GEORGETOWN TO BE DEBATED BY LOYOLA ON MARCH 20

On Wednesday, March the 20th, Loyola will debate Georgetown. Messrs. Patrick and Sodaro, Sophomores, of the Bellarmine Debating Society and Mr. Rozea, Freshman, of the George C. Jenkins Society, will cross swords with the White Debating Society of Georgetown, on the question, "Resolved, That enlarging our Navy at this time is consistent with our desire for World Peace." Our debaters will uphold the negative side of this question.

An invitation is extended to all and both Societies would be pleased by the presence of a goodly number of supporters. We can assure them that when they address their audience on the 20th, they will see their fellow members in a body urging them on to victory in their forensic clash with White of Georgetown.

The Debate will be held at Gaston Hall, Georgetown University, on Wednesday evening, March the 20th at 8:00 o'clock.

FRESHMEN TO HOLD DANCE AT EVERGREEN APRIL 12

The Freshmen are at it again! With the Basketball League honors tucked under their caps and nothing else to take their attention except the Freshmen Baseball Squad, they have decided to decorate the Gym and run a Freshman Dance.

Ed. Storck has been appointed Chairman of the Dance Committee and will be assisted by Messrs. Klemkoski, Swartzman, Simms, McCormack, Cooney and J. Moran.

The date has been announced for April 12th, and the dance will be an informal affair. The orchestra has not as yet been definitely determined on, but the Committee assures all that it will be local and good.

LOYOLA QUINT WINS FINAL GAME 38-28

Baltimore U. Extends Greyhounds in Thrilling Game

On Tuesday night, March 5, in the final game of the basket ball season, the Greyhounds for the second time defeated Baltimore University at Evergreen by the score of 38-28.

For thirty minutes Baltimore University threatened to topple Loyola from her throne at the head of the state race and it was only in the last half of the second period that the Greyhounds went on a scoring rampage and gained a comfortable lead which was to be their final margin of victory.

Captain Rodgers and Frank Dudley, playing their last game for the Green and Gray, made their exit in a blaze of glory and blasted whatever hopes Baltimore U. had for victory, while at the same time ending all the hopes of Washington College for the State Championship.

The Greyhounds started like a whirlwind and before the crowd realized it Dudley had swished two baskets through the cords. From then on, until a few seconds before the end of the half, the contest waxed bitter with now one and now the other team going into a slight lead. A few seconds before the in-

CUE ARTISTS COMPLETE ROUND IN ANNUAL POOL TOURNAMENT

The first round of the Pool Tournament has been completed and the contestants who have not been eliminated are now entering on the second round which is for 50 balls.

A large crowd will be found grouped around the billiard table every lunch time giving moral support to their favorites and applauding each brilliant shot.

The first round witnessed few "Upsets." All the men were running true to form and winning their respective matches with the exception of Bunting who was one of the favorites at the beginning of play but met defeat at the hands of Frank Dudley, 25-20.

Rodowskas started the tournament by defeating Dave Dudley by the score of 29-19. Eddie Cannon then proceeded to administer a decisive defeat to Simms, of Freshman at 25-15. In the third game Sadusk pocketed 25 balls to Martin Knott's 17 and thus remained in the tournament.

Schoberg of Junior showed excellent form in defeating Green 25-18 and will bear close watching by his opponents. The next game

COACH COMERFORD

Last evening Mr. Comerford, Captain Rodgers and their stout-hearted champions were feted by the Alumni and Student Body at the Emerson. We thank the Alumni and in particular "spirited Loyola Isaac George," and the faithful band that followed the team for this recognition of work well done. Mr. Comerford, our coach, deserves it. The team that humbled the State Champions, beat Western Maryland, scuttled the Navy, and, in its last encounter, fought off and subdued a stubborn "do or die" B. U. team, compelled it.

Hail, team! Well done, Alumni!

May we say that it was the victorious season that made the occasion for this gladsome feast? It only gave a happy opportunity for the full expression of appreciation, of loyalty and noble spirit that has grown deep by longer association with our coach. Of our admiration, our enthusiasm and confidence in him; of our dauntless spirit and staunch loyalty—not for a winning team, nor for a losing team—but a Loyola team, Mr. Comerford and the world has had witness.

Mr. Comerford himself has told us that at Loyola "he learned there was glory even in defeat." High praise but honest and deserved. So while we hail Mr. Comerford and his team, let us repeat that their glory in victory is not greater, nor this loyalty more sincere, nor this enthusiasm more expansive than it was on dark November afternoons.

So all hail to our coach; his team is a great one; their record an enviable one and their spirit is Loyola!

A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

The basketball season is over and now many of us are wondering where we last put our baseball gloves and whether the last baseball of the season was lost in the back lot or whether we hid it in the attic or perhaps down in the cellar. But before we go hunting for it we ought to pause a moment to pay, in our own small way, a tribute to our Championship Basketball team.

This stellar quint under the captaincy of "Vicious" Rodgers has just completed its most successful season in recent years. The Greyhounds although confronted by the most strenuous state schedule of any college in Maryland nevertheless set about their Herculean task and carved a name for themselves in the Maryland basketball annals. Every state team encountered was defeated at least once and the end of the season found the Greyhounds firmly enthroned atop the state basketball race.

No one single factor was instrumental in the team's successful quest for the mythical crown; rather, success must be attributed to perfection of the team in all departments.

Both collectively and individually the State Champs produced a team of which Loyola may be well proud. Collectively the Greyhounds presented a well oiled, smooth functioning basketball machine which, was coupled with a fine spirit and morale. Individually each member of the quint shone out as a star of the first magnitude and blazed a path of glory across the heaven of basketball fame.

On the defense, Curtis was very seldom outjumped, Rodgers and Liston, as veterans, were seldom drawn out of position and the rebound work of the three contributed a great deal towards turning the final score in Loyola's favor.

On the offense the entertainment of many a winter's night was provided by our diminutive forward "Utz" Twardowicz and his brilliant partner Frank Dudley, both of whom caused many an anxious moment for the opposition.

The record of this year's Greyhound Quintet, with nine victories out of ten starts for the State Championship will be written with a proud pen in the annals of Loyola's athletic activities. The Greyhound expresses the hearty and sincere congratulations of the entire Student Body and Alumni to the entire squad.

The Annual Prize Debate will be held on Friday, April 26th. Preliminary Contest will take place on Friday, March 22nd. Names of those desiring to enter the contest should be submitted to the Moderator, Mr. Schlaerth.

Father Cerrute install a sub-station in the Library? Or better still, a time-clock.

A great clearing of throats in the Freshman class betokens the approach of The Seventh Annual Oratorical Contest. We Irish always could orate. Do you remember Wasilifsky, who reached the Quarter-finals last year?

Due to illness on the part of the professor, the Inorganic Chemistry class did not function one day last week. There is an unverified rumor that the class, as a whole, went to the Chapel to pray for his speedy recovery, and then offered to come out Saturday morning to make up the lost time.

LATE BULLETINS:

Library being hurried to completion.

Track team attired in glorious raiment.

Baseball players turning toward study this spring.

Deep silence emanating from the Juniors concerning the Prom.

It might be noted that Loyola will debate against Georgetown in the near future, and while a debate doesn't offer the possibilities of a basketball trip, we ought to have some Loyola men at Washington to join in the applause.

Why don't the presidents of the Senior and Junior classes, as two of the student-body's representative men, call a meeting of the famous but inactive Student Council? The Council is an important factor in college life and should not be allowed to remain in the harmful state of quiescence in which it is now interred.

THAT JUNIOR PROM DATE

The Juniors issued the following bulletin today concerning the fourth annual Prom.

The Junior Class hereby advises all sane people, who have complete command of their faculties and with a desire to be the proverbial "Early worm," to reserve the evening of May 10th with the "One and Only" or the nearest thing to it.

Six full weeks advantage is offered by the Juniors to give every one ample time to make complete arrangements for that evening of evenings. So if you are forced to bring any other than "The heart's desire" don't blame it on the Juniors.

Of course the Prom committee promises everything will be of the best and bigger and better than any other Prom held at Loyola. So as a final warning; if you want your happiness complete get your name in her "Little Red Book" for May 10th.

HAVE YOU SUBSCRIBED?

Under the guidance of a very competent staff the Green and Gray has made remarkable progress both in the literary and the financial line. The editor has been receiving articles daily and hopes to have all the matter submitted in the near future.

Though the subscription list so far is very representative of the student body, it has not as yet come up to the fond hopes of the Circulation

ALUMNI NOTES

Basketball Dinner

Members of the Alumni gathered in numbers for the basketball dinner on March 14 and all experienced an hilarious evening. It seems that the old grads enjoy feting the teams just as much—if not more—than the teams enjoy being feted.

One recalls with happy memory the football banquet after the Hopkins game in 1928. Let's hope we have more occasions for banquets in the future. But do not all Loyola teams deserve them? That one team become champions is no indication that they worked harder or gave more than the many other teams that various circumstances prevented from attaining that goal of every team's frenzied efforts and ardent hopes.

If you were present at the dinner you can thank "Ike" George and his hard working committee for the pleasant evening. The following formed the committee:

J. Lacy Bradley
Clarence J. Caulfield
Charles C. Conlon
J. Stanley Cook
J. Neil Corcoran
John Cummings

Alumni at Chestertown

Driving snow, stalled busses and watery perils could not daunt a few hardy Alumni on that eventful first Saturday in March when the Greyhounds met the Flying Pentagons in their home town. What they lacked in numbers they made up in noise and, with the dozen or so students present, formed "a mighty elegant" cheering section. Among those noted in the gym at Chestertown were: James O'Neill, Herbert Kahn, and Charles C. Conlon. Mr. Conlon brought two little Conlons along—prospective Loyola athletes—that they might early learn the true meaning of the spirit and prowess of Loyola teams.

Alumni vs. Varsity

The great Loyola quint of 1923-1924 held another reunion on February 27 in the gym. The hosts of the evening were the present Varsity and the fare offered some exquisite passes and long shots. But the Alumni five are not the trenchermen of yore and they went down to a defeat occasioned by an overdose of the above viands. Though it was only a practice game it provided the handful of spectators with thrills aplenty.

It is with sorrow that we note the passing of the Honorable Charles H. Huisler, an eminent figure in city and state legal circles for a number of years past, and an ardent and active Alumnus. Judge Huisler, a graduate of Rock Hill College and Georgetown University, was the recipient of an LL.D. from Loyola and was an honorary member of the Alumni Association.

Department for a 100 per cent subscription in all the classes. It is earnestly asked by the members of the staff that the student body to a man subscribe to the Year Book.

LOYOLA DROPS RETURN GAME TO FLYING PENTAGON 45-33

On March 2, the Greyhounds journeyed to Chestertown to play the "Flying Pentagon" of Washington College on their own court. Loyola had conquered the Eastern Shoremen earlier in the season in a fast game at Evergreen but Washington College evened the series in their return engagement by inflicting the first set-back the Greyhounds have suffered at the hands of a State team in a thrilling hard fought game by the score of 45-33.

The game was the best that has been played on the Eastern Shore this season and the fray was witnessed by a packed house.

The Green and Gray attack failed to function properly in the first half and Washington College piled up a commanding lead in this session. The "Flying Pentagon" with all to gain and nothing to lose fought desperately and at the end of the half were leading by the score of 22-12.

In the second half the Greyhounds came back determined to stop the Flying Pentagon. To the amazement of the spectators Loyola started a bombardment of their opponents basket which resulted in their securing 13 points, while holding Washington College to a lone basket and thus knotting the score at 25 all.

At this point Giraitis, Washington's high scorer, put his team in the lead with a shot from mid-floor. The Greyhounds fought back valiantly to overcome this slight lead but in the closing minutes of the game the Flying Pentagon staged a rally which Loyola was unable to match and at the final whistle the Green and Gray quint was on the short end of a 45-33 score.

The game was featured by the brilliant shooting of Twardowicz and Dudley for Loyola and Giraitis and Carrington for Washington College, while the two guards Rodgers for the Greyhounds and Dobson for the Flying Pentagon came in for their share of the scoring honors.

CLASS BASKETBALL LEAGUE COMPLETES SECOND ROUND

Enthusiasm in the Interclass Basketball League was at fever heat. Every one watched the progress of the teams and was intensely interested in the outcome.

All games have been played with the exception of the Senior Soph tussle. The Freshmen having played four games and lost none are leading the league and are favored to be the ultimate winners of the tourney. But the Juniors are giving them a close battle having won three games and lost one.

All the contests have been interesting and fought with much spirit and several individual stars have been uncovered. Not least of these are Jimmy Kane of Junior, high point scorer of the league, and Nelson, a Pre Med, Jimmy's runner up.

Below is listed the standing of the clubs after the first two rounds.

LOYOLA INTRODUCES TRACK TO REPLACE VARSITY NINE

A varsity track team has been formed at Loyola for the coming Spring to take the place of the varsity baseball team, which has been dropped for this year.

Under Mr. Horn, former coach at Loyola College and High School and Georgetown track star, a number of men are working out each afternoon in the gymnasium but as soon as the weather moderates they will transfer their activities to the outside cinder track.

At present there are twelve men trying out for the team, comprising such track luminaries as, Smith, Houchens, Moran, Enders, Cannon, Saunders, Lewandowski, Patrick, Myers and McGee.

A capable relay team has been welded together but at present a lack of sprinters is much in evidence. There are, no doubt, many men in the college who have some sprinting ability and they owe it to their school to come out and do all in their power to make this track team a success.

The relay team has already been entered in the Penn relays and it is hoped that the team will see action in dual meets with Johns Hopkins and Baltimore University.

The reason for the dropping of baseball is due to the waning of interest in this college sport and as a result there has been difficulty in arranging a suitable schedule. Therefore baseball has been dropped for this year.

termission Diehl shot a field goal and the half ended with Baltimore U. leading 15-13.

As the second half began "Utz" Twardowicz tied the score with a basket and Liston placed the Greyhounds in the lead with a foul shot. At this point Baltimore U. again found the range of the basket consistently and ran the score to 21, while holding Loyola scoreless. However, the lead that the St. Paul Streeters enjoyed was short lived. The Loyola quint, visualizing the State Championship, rose to the occasion and began playing at their top form. Curtis shot a foul while Rodgers and Twardowicz each got a basket and the score was tied.

The Greyhounds were now playing as of old and could not be stopped. Curtis again scored, and baskets followed in rapid succession by Twardowicz, Liston, and Rodgers. In five minutes Loyola had made 17 points and jumped from 7 points behind into a 10 point lead. A few minutes later the curtain fell on Loyola's most successful basketball season in recent years with the score standing at 38-28.

The whole Green and Gray quint played a fine brand of basketball, while Silver and Elliot were the outstanding stars for Baltimore University.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR TO COACH FRESHMAN NINE -- MATERIAL GOOD

Close upon the announcement that Loyola will not be represented by a varsity baseball team this year, comes good news for those who delight in the National Pastime; for the Freshmen Class have signified their intention of forming a Freshman baseball team.

At present the plans are merely in the embryonic stage but the enthusiasm of the Freshman Class is running high and if interest manifested is any omen of the caliber of the team the season should be a success. The Athletic Director is very much impressed by the spirit displayed by the first year men and has promised to back the team in anything that is reasonable.

The Freshmen proceeding with their plans in a methodic manner have again put their best foot forward and secured the services of a most capable coach, upon whom much of the success of any team depends. Mr. Comerford has consented to instruct the yearlings in the fine points of the game. Mr. Comerford has played baseball for four years at Boston College and has had a few years of professional experience, so that a fast and well-trained team can be expected.

C. Edward Storck, who has been elected manager by the Freshman Class, is working on a schedule. He is negotiating with ten or twelve local high school and college freshmen teams and hopes to arrange a schedule which will furnish some lively interest on these balmy spring afternoons.

All home games will be played on the College diamond, and before long the familiar crack of the bat and the thud of the horsehide in the gloves will be reechoing across the campus.

If good material is any sign of a successful season then Loyola's Freshman Baseballers should come through with colors in the breeze. The miniature Babe Ruths and Ty Cobbs will be led by such well-known diamond stars as Ken Curtis, Simms, Lefty Wise, Fitzgerald, O'Neal, Willie Houchens, Cooney, Hock, Wryzseck, Klenkoski and Porter.

Mr. Murray, attorney of the legal department of the Maryland Casualty who had very generously accepted Mr. George's invitation to entertain the Loyola gathering, was then introduced and the tenseness produced by his opening remarks was quickly dispelled by the laughter as the humorous purpose of his speech became evident. Mr. Murray was followed by John Kilduff, a local minstrel, who introduced to the audience the season's latest and best song-hits.

It was time then for the banqueters themselves to add to the evening's entertainment and everything was prepared for the "uproar." Mr. G. DEBATING SOCIETIES

Bellarmino—

"Resolved: That King Lear is a greater tragedy than Hamlet" was the proposition debated by the Sophomores on Thursday, February 28th. Messrs. Rodowskas and Drozd upheld the affirmative side. Mr. Rodowskas, without gesture or eloquence, held the attention of his audience by one of the soundest, most logical and convincing speeches delivered in the Bellarmine this year. Taking Aristotle's definition of Tragedy and applying it to the plays in question, Mr. Rodowskas showed by close reasoning and clever marshalling of arguments the superiority of "King Lear" over "Hamlet." This speech seemed an insurmountable obstacle to the Negative but Messrs. Meyer and Ellis made a valiant attempt to thrust it aside and their rebuttal almost swung the decision which was given in favor of the Affirmative. This debate for interest and thought was the best this term.

On March 7th a discussion was attempted on a timely subject: "Resolved: That war, except in case of invasion or internal rebellion, should be declared by a direct vote of the people." Mr. Finnerty with the voluntary aid of Mr. Childress upheld the Affirmative against Messrs. Chester and Patro. The Negative presented forceful and clear arguments and stressed especially the view that a vote by millions of people would be slow and cumbersome and that the invader would be at our doors while the officials were still counting the votes. The Affirmative maintained that the people pay for war in money and lives and that they should decide the war issue. The Affirmative insisted on the fact that in the past parliaments and chambers have voted for war in direct opposition to the universal wishes of the people. Mr. Patro, in his rebuttal, insisted on the fact that our Senate is more capable than the people in deciding matters of such serious import, but failed to impress the House with this fact, the decision favoring the Affirmative. Jenkins—

Again the members of the Freshman Debating Society presented a hotly contested debate when they met on March 12th to decide whether modern advertising is more detrimental than beneficial to society.

Messrs. Graham and F. Moran led a strong attack for the Affirmative, both speakers exceeding the usual time allotted. In proving the detriment that would accrue to Society from modern advertising the Affirmative had recourse to many concrete examples. Sensing that this display might have misled the audience, the Negative, championed by Messrs. Porter and Simms, had recourse to like arguments and brought forth many examples which were very favorable to their side of the question. The debate was a spirited one and brought much applause and laughter from the audience. The entire time was consumed by the debaters appointed, though many from the Floor were waving magazines and pleading with the Chairman for recognition when adjournment was moved. The Affirmative won the decision on both the merits of the speakers and the question.

Before the debate of the day was introduced the schedule of coming debates was outlined and the names of the debaters were announced.

HISTORY ACADEMY

At a meeting of the History Academy held on March the 14th, two interesting papers on the Reformation were presented. In a paper entitled, "The Protestant Revolt in Germany," Mr. Leahy showed how the Reformation happened in an unexpected way from an incident which took place in Saxony. He described the affixing by Martin Luther of certain protests against Indulgences to a church door in Wittenberg, on the Eve of All Souls', 1517. This was the breach that was made in the dyke. Luther's subsequent actions, according to Mr. Leahy, came at a time of perilous instability and a wild enthusiasm seized great bodies of German folk, which resulted in a violent reaction against the authority of Rome and mixed up with that revolt all manner of other revolts against authority in general. Then followed revolution, riot and ruin for the peasant and desolation of the land. Mr. Leahy traced this movement through the Germanies and the Northern countries, reviewing the effects and losses to Catholicism in these sections. The lecture was a just estimate of the beginnings of the Protestant Revolt from the Catholic Church.

Mr. Carr followed with a paper, the title of which was the "Luther of Panegyric and of Fact." The reading was introduced by the statement that, although Martin Luther is one of the most notorious and significant figures in history, he is, nevertheless, one of the least understood. The Luther of Fact it appears, is, to the unclouded eye, obscured by a thick fog of false tradition, which still exists and exerts an influence more or less. Mr. Carr showed that these false traditions have flourished so luxuriantly and have so embellished the real Luther, that by many he is looked upon as a great and a good man. Some consider him not only as a great reformer who saved the Church when it was about to be drowned in a sea of corruption and falsehood but they even go so far as to claim that he was a real saint, a man of unusual profundity and god-like virtue.

Mr. Carr, after giving us this picture, proceeded to paint another which proved to be a direct antithesis to the first. He stripped the canvas of its gaudy and deceptive colors and presented to us the Luther of Fact. The child, the youth, the man and monk, and last, the reformer, were depicted in their true colors. It is interesting to note that, according to Mr. Carr, the real cause of Luther's decline were his inordinate love of his own opinion and his unfavorable estimate of good works which later developed into the principle tenet of his erroneous doctrine.

The character of Luther was next sketched—a creature of passion and impulse, inconstant and unbridled in his hatred of the Catholic Church. "He was bold in his statements and eloquent in his speech, but his conversation was permeated with an inherent coarseness and was often immoral and revolting."

The reading closed with a brief examination of the influence that Luther excreted in history as the spark that ignited the fire of the reformation. Luther endeavored to tear by its roots the tree of Catholicism under the pretext of pruning it of the evil fruit of corruption and abuse. And he failed. The Church herself in the Counter-reformation applied the knife and succeeded where the impetuous and revolting Luther had failed.

During the discussion period both speakers ably discussed their respective subjects—bringing to a happy close an instructive afternoon.
